

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for calibrating and/or improving the accuracy of time of flight ranging or level measurement systems. A correction factor is determined and applied to the calculated receive times for echo pulses in response to a change in the amplitude of the echo pulses or in response to a change in the noise floor.